Butler/Helm sincerely appreciate the ready access that was granted by the Upstate staff during these on-site visits. Typically schedules were not flexible, nor were the meeting locations easily accessible, yet the various interviewees modified their calendars to attend the meetings. During the interviews, participants were found to be open and honest, and driven by their desire to help Upstate improve.

Specific mention should be made of Deb Stehle for her facilitation of this project. Ms. Stehle's accessibility and applied energy caused the project to advance at an accelerated pace that could not have occurred without her involvement, oversight and communication skills.

Dr. David Smith was readily available and Butler/Helm appreciate the effort with his schedule and time.

Several individuals scheduled the interviews. This process was complex because of the many calendars involved. Thanks to Shari Sterle-Grant, Anne Peer, Lisa Gooley, and Barbara Ames for their work and attention to detail.
